The Writers' Program hosts or attends several events throughout the year that are free and open to the public. For specific information about each of these events, please click on the links to the right.

Writers Faire

Date: 9/7/08

This festive day features 24 free mini-classes and panel discussions in creative writing and screenwriting, hosted by fall Writers' Program instructors. Students get free writing instruction, chat with instructors, register for most fall courses at a 10 percent discount, learn more about the Writers'

Program, discuss goals with advisors, and visit with graduate writing programs, professional organizations, and writing-allied businesses. Also not to be missed this year in the lobby of Boelter Hall: Writers' Program staff alum Cristina Markarian shows you how easy it is to take courses online and uber-friendly Final Draft representatives demonstrate their outstanding screenwriting software. The Writers Faire is held in the Young Hall Courtyard on the UCLA campus from 10 am- 3 pm.

The 2008 Writers Faire schedule is set. Which workshops will you attend?
